CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

Background (1/4): Forms of business

- Sole proprietorship: one owner, unlimited liability, no separate legal existence.
- Partnership (Indian Partnership Act, 1932): persons sharing profits, with unlimited liability.
- LLP (Act of 2008): a separate legal entity with limited liability.
- Company (Companies Act, 2013): public, private or One Person Company.

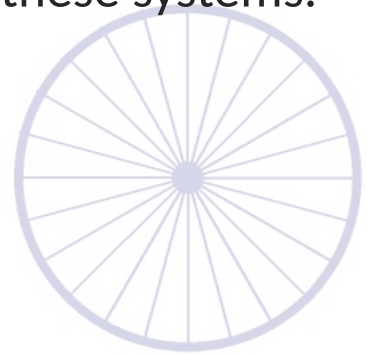

Background (2/4): Company basics

- A company is a separate legal person with limited liability and perpetual succession.
- Memorandum of Association is its charter. Articles of Association are its internal rules.
- A public company invites the public to buy shares through a prospectus.
- Directors manage it, auditors check its accounts, and winding up ends it.

Background (3/4): E-governance

- E-governance uses technology to deliver government services: to citizens (G2C), businesses (G2B), government bodies (G2G) and employees (G2E).
- Examples: Digital India, MCA21, DigiLocker, e-Courts.
- Engineers build, secure and improve these systems.

Background (4/4): What you must know

- The difference between a public and a private company.
- Contents of the Memorandum and Articles, and how they can be altered.
- Types of shares, duties of directors and how auditors are appointed.
- Meaning of e-governance and the role of engineers in it.
- Causes of alienation and secessionism, and how the State responds to them.

THE COMPANY ACT, 2013 [ERSTWHILE 1956]

Memorandum of Association

"Memorandum" means "Memorandum of Association of a company as originally framed and altered from time to time in pursuance of any provisions of company laws or of this Act"

The Memorandum of Association is a document of great importance in relation to the proposed company. It contains the objects for which the company is formed and therefore identifies the possible scope of its operations beyond which its action cannot go. It defines as well as confines the power of company. If anything is done beyond these power that will be ultra vires the Company and so void. Thus, it is evident that the memorandum is the charter and defines the limitation of the power of a company.

In normal way a liability clause cannot be altered to make the liability unlimited, but still the alteration are done in the liability clause:

- Conversion of unlimited liability into a limited liability: the procedure is to get it re-registered.
- Limited liability into unlimited liability: All the members have to give consent and the consent should be written.

THE COMPANY ACT, 2013 [ERSTWHILE 1956] (1/2)

Memorandum of Association [Alteration in the capital clause]

A company limited by share capital may, by an ordinary resolution passed in general meeting, alter the conditions of its memorandum in regard to capital so as

1. To increase its authorized share capital by such amount as it thinks expedient by issuing fresh shares.
2. To consolidate and divide all or any of its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares e.g. 10 shares of Rs. 10 each may be consolidated into one share of Rs. 100 each.
3. To convert all or any of its fully paid up shares into stock, and reconvert that stock into fully paid up shares of any denomination.

THE COMPANY ACT, 2013 [ERSTWHILE 1956] (2/2)

1. To sub-divide its shares, or any of them, into shares of smaller amount than fixed by the memorandum, but the proportion of paid and unpaid on each share must remain the same.
2. To cancel shares which, at the date of passing of the resolution in that behalf, have not been taken by any person and thus diminish the amount of its share capital by the amount of the shares so cancelled.

THE COMPANY ACT, 2013 [ERSTWHILE 1956] (1/2)

Memorandum of Association [Doctrine of ultra vires]

Ultra vires is the combination of two words and they are ‘ultra’ means beyond and ‘vires’ means power. An act will be said to be Ultra vires, when it is performed which though legal in itself, is not permitted by the objects clause in the Memorandum of Association or the statute. These are of three types:

Acts ultra vires the director: These acts are out of the scope of the direction of the company. They are not totally void or inoperative. They can be ratified by the shareholders in a general Meeting.

THE COMPANY ACT, 2013 [ERSTWHILE 1956] (2/2)

Acts ultra vires the Articles of association of the company: The acts will be ultra vires if they are beyond the powers of the company given to its by its Articles of association. They are also not void and inoperative. They can also be ratified by the company by altering the articles through a special resolution.

Acts ultra vires the memorandum of association of the company: These acts are beyond the powers of the company, so called. “Ultra vires the company”. They are wholly void, inoperative and cannot be ratified by whole body of the shareholders.

THE COMPANY ACT, 2013 [ERSTWHILE 1956]

E-GOVERNANCE: MEANING AND INITIATIVES

- E-governance means using information and communication technology to deliver government services and information to citizens, businesses and government bodies.
- Types: G2C (government to citizen), G2B (business), G2G (government) and G2E (employees).
- Milestones: National e-Governance Plan (2006) and the Digital India programme (2015).
- Examples: MCA21 (company filings), DigiLocker, UMANG, GeM (government e-marketplace), e-Office, and Aadhaar-based services.

IMPORTANCE OF e-GOVERNANCE (1/2)

- Information delivery is greatly simplified for citizens and businesses.
- It gives varied departments' information to the public and helps in decision making.
- It ensures citizen participation at all levels of governance.
- It leads to automated services so that all works of public welfare is available to all citizens.
- It revolutionizes the functions of the government and ensures transparency.
- Each department and its actions is closely monitored.
- Public can get their work smartly done and save their time.

IMPORTANCE OF e-GOVERNANCE (2/2)

- It provides better services to citizens and brings government close to public. Public can be in touch with the government agency.
- It cuts middlemen and bribery if any from the picture.

CHALLENGES FACED BY e Governance

- Technical
- Infrastructural
- Privacy & Security
- Lack of training & awareness
- Lack of qualified persons
- Availability of the digital technology

ROLE OF ENGINEERS IN E-GOVERNANCE

- Engineers design, build and secure the systems: software, networks, data centres, cloud services and cybersecurity.
- They use GIS, IoT and data analytics for planning, monitoring and delivering public works and services.
- Need for reformed engineering services at the Union and State level: modern digital tools (e-tendering, online project monitoring, GIS mapping), regular training, transparent and accountable processes, and technical audits.
- Engineers also ensure accessibility, data privacy and reliable service for all citizens.

ALIENATION & SECESSIONISM

- Alienation is defined as the feeling that you have no connection with the people around you or that you are not part of a group.
- Secessionism is the ideology of becoming independent and no longer part of a country, area, organization, etc.

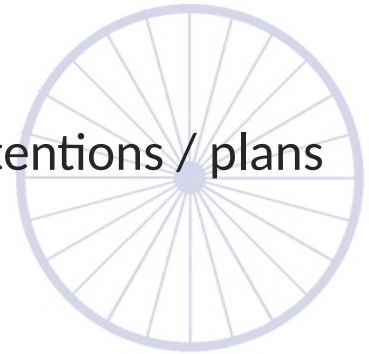

ALIENATION & SECESSIONISM

- Most secessionist movements those in India draw their sustenance from ethnic, religious and cultural factors
- The common grievance that the concerned communities share is the nature of their incorporation into the Indian state.
- The basis of their claims tends to rest on the argument that in the confusion following the end of the British Raj, India simply appropriated the autonomy of several distinct regions and communities.
- In other words, the ‘national territorial formation’ technique of New Delhi directly clashed with the aspirations of many ‘autonomy seeking’ communities and regions.

ALIENATION & SECESSIONISM

Reasons for secessionism

- Geopolitics
- Decolonization conflict
- Kin state intervention
- Self perception of victimhood
- Lacking autonomy granting intentions / plans

ALIENATION AND SECESSIONISM: RESPONSES

- Constitutional accommodation: linguistic reorganisation of States (1956), the Sixth Schedule (autonomous councils) and special provisions such as Art. 371A for Nagaland.
- Political settlements: the Assam Accord (1985), the Mizoram Accord (1986) and the Bodo Accord (2020).
- Development and local participation through Panchayati Raj and special area programmes.
- Impact on industry: insecurity, poor connectivity and political uncertainty discourage investment, so peace, infrastructure and local participation support industrial development.

IT INITIATIVES IN THE JUDICIARY

List of Business Information System (LOBIS):

- This system is about scheduling of cases to be heard by the courts on the following day.
- This process has enabled the court administration to eliminate the manual process of Cause List generation.
- These databases contain details of fresh cases, disposed and pending cases.
- This has proved to be a backbone application of every Court in these days.
- Due to this system Cause Lists are generated automatically by the computer without any manual interference resulting in generation of Cause List in time without any delay.
- Cases are listed strictly in chronological order of date of filing; eliminated irregularities

IT INITIATIVES IN THE JUDICIARY

List of Business Information System (LOBIS):

- All the cases having the same law point(s) to be decided by the courts can be grouped and posted before one bench.
- This has helped the courts in faster disposal of cases.
- It has become easier to recall dismissed cases when review petitions are filed.
- The system has been effective in generating instantaneous statistical reports.
- It has helped Registry of Supreme Court in streamlining its day to day activities to achieve one of the main objectives of COURTIS Project

IT INITIATIVES IN THE JUDICIARY

COURTNIC:

- This is about providing Supreme Courts' pending case status information to litigants/advocates on any node of NICNET.
- COURTNIC answers about two hundred queries of litigants/advocates per day all over the country on the status of their pending cases. It is available on nominal charges.
- Primarily COURTNIC information is available in all NIC-High Court Computer Cells and in some District Court. This system is in use since 1993.
- The response to the COURTNIC from the public is very positive because the litigants need not visit the court to come all over to Delhi from their place to get the information of their case.
- COURTNIC has largely been replaced by the eCourts services and the National Judicial Data Grid (NJDG).

IT INITIATIVES IN THE JUDICIARY

JUDIS:

- NIC has brought out Judgment Information System (JUDIS) consisting of complete text of all reported judgment of Supreme Court of India from 1950 to till Date.
- Supreme Court's pending Cases on IVR: Interested litigants and advocates can find out the status of their cases pending in Supreme Court on telephone by making use of Interactive Voice Response System (IVR) free of charge.

IT INITIATIVES IN THE JUDICIARY

CONFONET' Scheme:

- A project for Computerization and Computer Networking of Consumer Fora in the Country (CONFONET).
- Consumer Fora are now Consumer Commissions, and complaints can be filed online through e-Daakhil.

e-COURTS PROJECT

- The e-Courts Mission Mode Project (from 2007) computerises district and subordinate courts. Phase III was approved in 2023.
- Case Information Software (CIS) records filing, listing and judgments, and the eCourts services app gives case status.
- National Judicial Data Grid (NJDG): online data on pending and decided cases across courts.
- E-filing, virtual courts and video conferencing reduce travel and delay.
- Role of IT professionals: building secure, accessible systems, protecting data, and training court staff.
